What Paid Leave can do for fathers

Help fathers spend more time with their children.

77% of fathers would like to spend more time with their children - paid leave would help more fathers close this gap.

Studies show significant increase in leave-taking by men in states like California and Rhode Island with paid family leave programs.

Contribute to improving postnatal health.

74% of mothers whose partners attended classes about breastfeeding continued to breastfeed, compared with 41% without an attending male partner.

Provide financial relief during life events such as a new child or illness.

Less than one in ten men work at sites that offer paid paternity leave to all male employees.

Unlike 70 other countries, the U.S. provides no paid paternity leave.
